Kentucky Senate Candidates Carroll Hubbard and Stan Humphries Participate in Kentucky Farm Bureau Forum

(Clinton KY, September 20, 2012) - (Clinton KY, September 20, 2012) - Senate candidates Carroll Hubbard (D) and Stan Humphries (R) appeared together in a forum sponsored by the Kentucky Farm Bureau on Thursday night. Around forty Farm Bureau Board Members and guests from Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton attended the event.

In his opening remarks, Hubbard reminded the audience that he served as state senator for seven years. He could not recall any vote that he had ever cast that was "A disappointment to the Farm Bureau." He told the audience that he is not a farmer, so "I won't be telling you what I believe."

Stan Humphries told the audience he is a seventh generation farmer. His family raised cattle and grew tobacco until the buyout. After the buyout,

"It was either get big or get out. We chose to get out." He farmed full time for awhile before he had the opportunity to run for office. What is needed is "someone strong to be the voice for West Kentucky," because the First Senate District is three hundred miles from Frankfort.

After their opening remarks, the candidates fielded a range of questions from Moderator Shannon Waltmon of Kentucky Farm Bureau, who asked a series of multi-part questions that had both candidates scribbling notes for their responses.

The first question was in three parts. The first concerned House Bill 611, passed in April 2000, which set aside 50% of the tobacco master settlement agreement funds to allow farmers to apply for innovative agricultural ideas. The second part of the question asked if the candidates would "diligently" support funding for research and extension services. Finally, Waltmon asked for statements of support for the Department of Agriculture.

Humphries said he would work to provide adequate funding for agricultural research and insure that Kentucky Proud will be adequately funded. He cited innovative programs like pond shrimp farming. He supports the provision that keeps 50% of the funding local. He also pledged to work "diligently" to fully fund the Breathitt Diagnostic Center in Hopkinsville as a diagnostic center for agriculture.

Hubbard said that he would look to top notch people for advice. He offered to have forums in the Young Center to hear views on farming. He cited a long friendship with former representative Fred Nesler, who now works for the Department of Agriculture and the local farmers and farm experts. In addition, Hubbard pledged to work with him and Agricultural Commissioner James Comer. "Research money? Yes. But we don't want higher taxes in Kentucky," Hubbard said.

He told the audience, "We've got a lot of waste in state government. Sometime go to Frankfort, get there about eight o'clock when state employees are supposed to be coming in and see how many come in at 8:20, 8:30. Then go to the cafeteria and see how many are in there having coffee and then look to see how many are having cigarette breaks.

There's a lot of waste. Personnel could be cut way back."

Candidates were asked about marketing agriculture products and improving the quality of rural life.

Hubbard said he is no expert on marketing, and will look to the Farm Bureau and Commissioner Comer for ideas.

He expressed himself anxious to help farmers market their products.

As far as improving rural quality of life, Hubbard said those legislators from rural areas will be more concerned about the quality of life among rural people than those from urban areas.

Humphries recounted being at a biomass conference at Murray State University during the summer with Agriculture Commissioner James Comer, and expressed support for the MSU program. He said that we have "just touched the tip of the iceberg on using our river ports. We have to capitalize on our biggest asset - the Mississippi River."

He is concerned that big companies are keeping small mom and pop companies that want to bring narrow band internet access to rural areas.

Secretary of State Urges Voters to be Prepared for November 6th General Election

September 25, 2012, is National Voter Registration Day, and Secretary of State Alison Lundergan Grimes is reminding all Kentuckians to take the necessary steps to ensure their voices are heard in the November 6, 2012, General Election.

The November 6, 2012, General Election is only six weeks away, and Secretary of State Alison Lundergan Grimes reports that Kentucky's county clerks started sending absentee ballots to military and other eligible voters last week.

"The process of receiving, filling out, and returning an absentee ballot can take weeks, especially for active-duty military members," said Grimes. "I encourage all eligible citizens to make sure they are registered to vote and submit their absentee ballot requests promptly."

Kentuckians can check their registration status; obtain a voter registration card and review information related to the upcoming General Election at the Secretary of State's website, www.sos.ky.gov.

Resources for military and overseas U.S. citizens are also located on the Secretary of State's website. In an effort to reach all eligible voters, direct links to these items are highlighted on the Secretary of State's Facebook page. Members of the military and their families and overseas U.S. citizens can find additional information on registering to vote and requesting an absentee ballot via the Federal Post Card Application by visiting www.fvap.gov.

Under Kentucky law, ballots for the November 6th General Election were required to be printed at least 50 days before the election, or September 17, 2012. Absentee ballots that were validly requested prior to that date were required to be transmitted no later than three days thereafter, or September 20, 2012. Absentee ballots validly requested after September 17th will be transmitted within three days after the application is received.

The deadline to register to vote in the November 6, 2012, General Election is October 9, 2012. County clerks' offices will accept voter registration cards until close of business on that date, and mail-in voter registration applications must be postmarked by that date.

Voters who have recently moved must update their registration information by October 9th. Pursuant to KRS 116.025(6), individuals who move from one county to another county while the voter registration books are open and fail to update their registration information before the registration books close will not be permitted to vote in the election.

In order to be counted, executed absentee ballots must be received by the county clerk no later than 6 p.m., local time, on November 6, 2012. In-person absentee voting will be open in all counties at least 12 business days before the election.

From Father’s Heart To Yours By Ralph and Pamela Hale

When Jesus Passes By

Bartimaeus was only expecting a hand out from someone passing by as he sat at the gate on the outskirts of Jericho. It was his custom being blind to sit and beg for coins or food as people went by. He even wore a certain garment to identify him as a blind man in need of other’s sympathy.

On this particular day there seemed to be an unusually large number of people passing by him and he wanted to know why so many and why so noisy. Jesus was passing by they said. He’s been in Jericho and no one there wanted a touch from Him. How sad that there were needy people in Jericho but none would admit their need or that Jesus could meet that need.

Life is full of missed opportunities. How often the good news is offered to us and we don’t reach out or cry for Jesus to have mercy on us. In church we have heard the good news of salvation, healing, deliverance, a better way of life in Christ, but we don’t move to respond to God’s invitation. The airwaves of radio and television satellite systems broadcast the news 24 hrs a day that Jesus is near, in our hearts and in our mouths. If we will only confess our need for Him and cry out, He will hear and answer us. But in Jericho they were the same way, no one cried, Jesus didn’t stop but went on His way to another place and another person.

But Bartimaeus heard that Jesus was passing right by Him and he began to cry for Jesus to stop and have mercy on him. But the people with Jesus tried to make the blind man stop crying. Perhaps the visit to Jericho had dulled their perception of what Jesus was all about. Perhaps they thought Jesus schedule was too busy to stop.

Perhaps they thought this poor blind man was not good enough to warrant stopping the Master. Maybe they thought, well Jesus has given attention to one at a time in the past but He’s in to mass healing now so He simply cannot be bothered with just the cry of one blind beggar. But the more they tried to silence the blind man, the more he cried, “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me.”

By his persistence, he got the attention of the Master. Suddenly the calling became reversed and Jesus began to call the blind man! Isn’t it amazing that God just wants us to be persistent in calling out to Him so He can be persistent in calling out to us? Come to me, he says! Come and believe! Come and yoke up with me and your burdens I will carry! Your sins I will forgive! Your body I will heal! Your broken life I will mend! Be of good comfort! Get up and come to me Jesus says!

Bartimaeus threw away his garment that said he was blind, for he knew he would never need it again! Beloved when we come to Jesus in faith we will never be the same again! What will you have me to do for you, Jesus says? Lord, that I might receive my sight! What will you have Jesus do for you today? Don’t be afraid, only believe. Make your request known to Him and prepare to receive from the Master’s hand.

Jesus is absolutely amazing! Just tell Him what you need and hear His reply. Go your way now; your faith has made you whole! Immediately you will receive! Now follow Jesus! (Mark 10: 46-52).

ONE PRESSON’S VIEW

By Kay Presson

How important is the history of our families? This is of prime importance and is something we need to pass along to future generations.

As I travel to work at Hancock’s of Paducah, my commute takes me down new Holt Road and by an eatery called Penn Station. How coincidental! My great-grandmother, Bertha Holt-Penn, was born at the property known as Fort Holt in Ballard County.

She married Gabriel Emmett Penn, who was a distant relative of William Penn, as well as Kentucky author, Robert Penn Warren.

As a child I would listen attentively as the “old folks” talked and learned much of my family history by listening to them. Write it down, pass it along, for this is important for our history!

I would like to extend a very Happy Birthday to Lloyd Presson on September 25th and to my granddaughter, Savannah Smith who was born on September 27th. Sincerely, Granny Kay and your loving family.

This week's inspiration

This week’s inspiration from scripture verses Mark 9: 30-37: Good people do for themselves and great people do for others. Jesus taught this as a foundation of what it means to be a Christian. In these scripture verses, Jesus asked the disciples what they had been talking about. They were embarrassed because they had been discussing who among them was the greatest. Jesus told them the first will be last. To be great, you must be last and servant to all. This is the very essence of the nature of Christ. We must not discriminate in our service to people by only serving those who can provide something to us in return. To be great by putting others before ourselves, we must draw on the spiritual resources that only God can give us. Jesus welcomes us and asks us to welcome others.

Kentucky Whitetails Program Donates $800 Towards Archery Team for School

Philip King, Chairman of the Western Kentucky Region of Kentucky Whitetails, recently presented Ken Jewell with an $800 donation from Whitetails Unlimited for the archery program at Carlisle County Schools. The money will buy needed supplies and equipment to lay the foundation for an archery team that will compete at the middle and high school levels.

Kentucky Whitetails is one of the few hunting/wildlife conservation programs where a share of the proceeds go back to local community programs.

Storey Named Amongst Finalists for Ashland Teacher of the Year

Megan Jones Storey, a teacher at Paducah independent Schools, Paducah Middle School, was named amongst the 24 finalists for Ashland's Teacher of the Year.

All 24 teachers will be honored at a ceremony in Frankfort on October 17 in the State Capitol Building. Representatives of the Kentucky Department of Education, the Governor's Office and Ashland's Chairman and CEO Jim O'Brien will be present to honor the teachers and to recognize the Kentucky Elementary, Middle and High School Teachers of the Year.

From that group of three finalists, the Kentucky Teacher of the Year will be named and will represent the state in the National Teacher of the Year competition. Ashland will present the 24 TAA recipients with cash awards and certificates at the awards ceremony. In addition to their cash awards, the three Kentucky Teachers of the Year also will receive custom-designed glassware commemorating their accomplishments, and all 24 educators will be honored at a special luncheon after the ceremony. The Kentucky Teacher Awards program combines the best elements of the Ashland Inc. Teacher Achievement Awards and the Kentucky Teacher of the Year programs.

This marks the 12th year the Department of Education and Ashland have partnered to honor Kentucky educators. Judging was conducted in August by a blue-ribbon panel of veteran educators, many of whom have more than 25 years of teaching experience. Applications included information on the nominees' teaching philosophies, teaching experiences and involvement in their respective communities, as well as letters of recommendation from peers, students, parents, administrators and others. Ashland has recognized outstanding Kentucky teachers with its Teacher Achievement Awards since 1988. Approximately $658,000 has been awarded to more than 425 teachers of grades K to 12.

Extension Office Warns Citizens About Army Worms

The Extension Office has had several calls and visits this week about fall armyworms. Here are a few things that you need to know about them.

The fall armyworm is a tropical pest that migrates into Kentucky from Texas or Florida. It cannot survive our winters so the adult moth must fly in each year and deposit its eggs which hatch out after a few weeks. There are two feeding types and both are found in Kentucky. The corn strain prefers to feed on corn and grain sorghum, while the grass strain prefers small grasses such as wheat, millet and other forage grasses. Fescue isn't their favorite, but they will feed on it, especially young plants. Bermudagrass, however, is their favorite so lawns, golf courses and sports turf should be watched closely.

This pest is a grazer. So it makes sense that the most susceptible crop is newly seeded fields of forage. Many cattlemen have already sown or renovated pastures to try and create grazing opportunities for their animals because of the short hay crop and lack of pastures. Newly seeded wheat, ryegrass or fescue fields should be inspected often to determine fall armyworm presence and infestation level. Older stands aren't as vulnerable, but FAW could reduce the amount available forage and, with the weather we've had this year, producers can't afford to lose any more. The same goes for newly seeded lawns which are also highly vulnerable.

Another potential host crop is soybean. Although not preferred, fall armyworms often feed on soybeans because they're green when not much else is available. Soybean fields at earlier growth stages are more susceptible and field edges are favored because FAW often migrates into the edges of soybean fields from grassy areas.

When farmers or homeowners observe 3-4 fall armyworms per square foot of pasture or lawn, action should be taken to control this pest. If using a sweep net, 9 worms per 25 sweeps is the economic threshold. Baythroid, Mustang Max, Dipel, Warrior, Malathion and Sevin are all pesticides which can be used to control this pest, but make sure the crop you want to spray is included on the label. For more information, contact the Carlisle County Extension Office at 628-5458.

Educational programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

When asked about fiscal matters, the candidates agreed to continue protecting House Bill 44, the mechanism for raising property taxes. Both support continued tax exemptions for agricultural products, with Democratic Candidate Hubbard adding that the state is in economic trouble and the state pension system is broken. Hubbard said that he will support changes that will help it survive.

On transportation issues, both candidates agreed that the provision that devotes 22.2% of the transportation budget to maintaining rural roads should be maintained, increased if possible.

The candidates were asked, “What steps will you take to assure that Kentucky law enforcement officers understand current laws and regulations with respect to farm vehicles when they were wrongly applied?”

Hubbard commented, “As a good friend of Governor Beshear, I would make sure to call it to his attention if there is a problem with the Department of Justice.” Hubbard said that the Kentucky State Police understands the law because they are an educated workforce.

Humphries said that as Judge Executive of Trigg County, he has dealt with road maintenance issues. He said his county uses “chip and seal,” a method that is not as costly or long lasting as blacktop.

“We hosted town meetings back home for our farmers to attend with the Kentucky State Police and Department of Transportation. We want everyone on the same page. Farmers have a right to farm, we all know agriculture has to come to town,” Humphries said.

When asked about state versus federal control of insurance, both candidates agreed that state control was their preference with both candidates in favor of making the state more business friendly noting that the business climate of the area could be improved.

As far as litigation issues, Humphries said that, “We live in a world where someone seems to have to be blamed.”

As far as business climate in the area, Trigg County Judge Humphries recalled that Fulton County has the second highest unemployment rate in the state. “It is a list you don’t want to be on.”

Current attorney and former United States Representative Carroll Hubbard said that the Kentucky Medical Association got the Legislature to pass a law that a person needed a doctor to back up their claim. Hubbard said there should be a penalty for frivolous lawsuits. But some cases are not frivolous. He said that as far as tort reform, he would wait to see how the law was written.

The question and answer session ended with the topic of education. The candidates were asked if they support extended pay for career and technical employees. Both agreed they would.

The final question was for an assessment of the current education system, and what the candidates can do to make it stronger.

Carroll Hubbard said that education is very important. He said that the Kentucky Education Association met with both candidates and endorsed him unanimously, 21-0. “Teachers across Kentucky support my candidacy.” To improve education, Hubbard offered, “We must do everything we can to support education, and it is a ‘shame’ that tuition continues to rise at public universities.”

Humphries told the audience he was a teacher who taught school during the Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA) era. He called that period “challenging”.

Humphries said that SEEK, the funding formula for state support of education, textbook and preschool funds must be increased.

In his closing remarks, Stan Humphries acknowledged criticism that he had not spent sufficient time in the river counties. He said that he is trying to get around to everyone, but “I have a day job”.

Humphries said the big issue he sees is that the district is 300 miles from Frankfort. To combat that issue, Humphries said he will be in a position to be on committees that matter to the area. He specifically mentioned the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Carroll Hubbard told the audience of farmers that his three cousins, who are Kentucky Farm Bureau Agents, help keep him up on issues in agriculture. Hubbard said that his opponent had never been to Carlisle, Fulton or Hickman County. He said that new business is needed in the area, reminding the audience that there is no industry whatsoever in Carlisle County.

He said that Governor Beshear strongly endorses his candidacy, relating the Governor’s meeting with local county judges when the Governor urged their support for Hubbard. Hubbard said Governor Beshear wants a state senator that won’t vote against his policies.
